10. Informed Choices: Retirement and Savings – 9 November 2005, Brussels

The population throughout Europe is both ageing and living longer, with resulting concern about the future sustainability of State spending on pensions. All Member States are having to make a radical re-appraisal of their current pension provision, both State and private, to cope with expected demographic changes. The UK has developed the Informed Choice programme, which aims to foster an increasingly proactive approach by individuals to saving for retirement.

The Informed Choices: Retirement and Savings meeting will showcase the Informed Choice programme and similar programmes from two other Member States. It will also allow Member States to focus on the key challenges, the steps taken so far to address those shared challenges, and how Member States can best work together to meet them.

Attendance: Pension officials and stakeholders

11. Gender Equality Conference- Equality Ministers' Informal - 7/8/9 November 2005, Birmingham (M)

2005 will mark the tenth anniversary of the Beijing Platform for Action, which was agreed at the Fourth World Conference on Women in 1995. The Luxembourg and UK Presidencies have agreed, (in conjunction with the Commission and other Member States) to highlight this anniversary as the central theme of our gender equality Presidency programmes. At their conference in February, Luxembourg will focus on the different models of national machineries for women that Member States have evolved to implement Beijing, whilst at the UK conference (7/8 Nov) we will highlight practical models of good practice and cutting edge policy that Member States have successfully developed, to help implement and progress the Beijing Platform for Action. This conference will involve a broad spectrum of partners, such as NGOs, academics, senior policy officials, social partners and MEPs, totalling up to 200 people.

Following the excellent practice established by most Presidencies over the last few years, we will invite Equality Ministers to an Informal meeting, which will take place immediately after the wider conference (8/9 Nov, Birmingham). Ministers will be able to consider how EU Member States have taken forward the agenda set in Beijing. We will be discussing ideas for format and content of the Ministerial at a meeting with Luxembourg and Luisa Pavan Wolfe on 5 November, to ensure that UK plans are complementary to those of Luxembourg.

In line with usual practice we shall also convene a meeting of the European Commission High Level Group on Gender Mainstreaming, to be held in London in September.

Attendance:	Ministers with responsibility for gender equality, NGOs and social partners

14. Small Business in the social dialogue in an enlarged Europe – 17 November 2005, London

As part of the UK's enterprise week we plan for the event on Social Dialogue to be very focused and practical - essentially a meeting of experts - looking at ways in which the existing Social Dialogue processes might be further developed where, particularly in new Member States, industries comprising mainly small and medium sized firms may lack structured union and business representation at national level to enable their voice to be effectively represented at the European level.

In taking this forward we would look to address some of the concerns flagged by new member states during the Modena Conference held under the Italian Presidency and in the Commission's own recent Social Dialogue communication – that, particularly in new Member States and where sectors are predominantly comprise small firms the structures for social dialogue at national level are weak which means they are less able to contribute effectively to the European Social Dialogue process.

Attendance: Officials and social partners

18. Corporate Social Responsibility Conference - 1/2 December 2005, London
The aim for the conference is to focus on how financial institutions can help to drive an increase in CSR through their approach to assessing company performance and future prospects; and through their potential contribution towards meeting the Millennium Development goals ie through international investment and finance for development
The conference would provide an opportunity to share and spread best practice across member states. We would also aim to examine the contribution of existing models aimed at the financial sector with a view to generating wider sign up among financial companies and other stakeholders to relevant initiatives in support our sustainable development goals.
We would also look to draw relevant links with other events in the lead up to our conference, for example the G8 summit and consider the scope for other organisations to run related events on the back of our conference.
Attendance:	Officials, employers and social partners
