The solution to the Constitutional crisis

A Fundamental Treaty

Treaty on the Policies

Three protocols

The biggest challenge the European Union is confronted with at present is how to solve its Constitutional crisis. 18 EU countries, i.e. two thirds of the member states, have already ratified the Constitution. In 2 member states, referendums were held in which the citizens rejected the draft treaty. To solve the ratification crisis, the best way forward is to simplify the treaty and divide it into a “Fundamental Treaty of the European Union” (hereafter referred to as the Fundamental Treaty), and a “Treaty on the Policies of the European Union” (hereafter referred to as the Treaty on the Policies). Protocols can be annexed so as to help integrate such issues as the fight against climate change and make these treaties more acceptable to European citizens.

During the referendums in France and the Netherlands, two fundamental criticisms were raised. The original Constitution was perceived as being too complex and too wide-ranging. In addition, the name “European Constitution” caused concerns among people fearing the loss of their national identities and increasing the fear of a European Super State. Both issues can be solved:

- The fundamental provisions on the values, objectives, institutions and competences of the EU (Parts I and IV of the European Constitutional Treaty) will be summed up in a shorter and easily understandable “Fundamental Treaty of the European Union”, which will only include 70 articles.

- The Charter of Fundamental Rights (Part II of the Constitutional Treaty) will be made legally binding by means of a relevant article in the Fundamental Treaty (Art. 9), with the full text of the Charter becoming a protocol.
- The Union's policies (Part III of the Constitutional Treaty) will be defined in a separate "Treaty on the Policies of the European Union", which will be however intrinsically linked to the Fundamental Treaty. It will be based on the Nice Treaty but amended in the light of the new provisions of Part III of the Constitution.

Since the signing of the "Treaty establishing a Constitution for Europe" in October 2004 in Rome, decisions on tackling climate changes have been taken in the EU and thus a new leaf has been turned regarding the future of EU policies. The intergovernmental conference has to integrate climate change policy into the treaties. I suggest the addition of a "Protocol on Climate Change" as an annex to the Treaty on the Policies.

The draft constitutional treaty also raised another important concern, not only in the framework of the referendum in France but also in the discussions in other member states: according to its critics, the text did not sufficiently emphasise the social dimension of the EU. The intergovernmental conference has to address this issue. Either it should choose to present the progress and innovations introduced in the Constitutional Treaty on social aspects in a clearer manner in a declaration on the "Social Europe", or more substance should be given to European social policy in a new "Social Protocol".

Note: The present paper only contains the text of the Fundamental Treaty, with some explanatory notes on the Treaty on the Policies, the protocols and the changes to the EC Treaty. Fundamental Treaty of the European Union
(Fundamental Treaty)

A) Explanatory note

The proposed text for the Fundamental Treaty is made up of a Preamble and 70 articles. These emerge from the Preamble as well as Articles 1 to 60 (Part I) and 437 to 448 (Part IV) of the Constitutional Treaty. The articles remain unchanged, except for some minor formal adjustments – which appear in italics. These adjustments are necessary in order to divide the Constitution into a Fundamental Treaty, a Treaty on the Policies and the protocols. For instance, Article 9, paragraph 1 is phrased in a way that it still refers to the Charter of Fundamental Rights, but corresponds to the new structure. Accordingly all references to Part III of the Constitutional Treaty are replaced by a mention to the Treaty on the Policies.

Moreover, Article 61 (Art. 437 of the Constitutional Treaty) has been changed, since the EC Treaty will not be repealed but adapted to the structure and content of Part III of the Constitutional Treaty and transformed into a "Treaty on the Policies of the European Union". The EU Treaty will however be repealed and replaced with the proposed Fundamental Treaty, since the latter encompasses most of the provisions of the former.

The rules on the simplified revision procedure of the original Part III of the Constitution (Articles 444 and 445) are transferred to the Treaty on the Policies, since these only concern the provisions contained in it (see Article 325 of the act, Part I, point 3).

BELIEVING that Europe, reunited after bitter experiences, intends to continue along the path of civilisation, progress and prosperity, for the good of all its inhabitants, including the weakest and most deprived; that it wishes to remain a continent open to culture, learning and social progress; and that it wishes to deepen the democratic and transparent nature of its public life, and to strive for peace, justice and solidarity throughout the world,

CONVINCED that, while remaining proud of their own national identities and history, the peoples of Europe are determined to transcend their former divisions and, united ever more closely, to forge a common destiny,

Fundamental rights

(1) The Union shall recognise the rights, freedoms and principles set out in the Protocol "Charter of Fundamental Rights", annexed to the Fundamental Treaty.

(2) The Union shall accede to the European Convention for the Protection of Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms. Such accession shall not affect the Union's competences as defined in the Fundamental Treaty.

These rights shall be exercised in accordance with the conditions and limits defined by the Fundamental Treaty and by the measures adopted thereunder.

TITLE III UNION COMPETENCES

Article 11

Fundamental principles

(1) The limits of Union competences are governed by the principle of conferral. The use of Union competences is governed by the principles of subsidiarity and proportionality.

(2) Under the principle of conferral, the Union shall act within the limits of the competences conferred upon it by the Member States in the Fundamental Treaty to attain the objectives set out in the Fundamental Treaty. Competences not conferred upon the Union in the Fundamental Treaty remain with the Member States.

(3) Under the principle of subsidiarity, in areas which do not fall within its exclusive competence, the Union shall act only if and insofar as the objectives of the proposed action cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States, either at central level or at regional and local level, but can rather, by reason of the scale or effects of the proposed action, be better achieved at Union level.

The institutions of the Union shall apply the principle of subsidiarity as laid down in the Protocol on the application of the principles of subsidiarity and proportionality. National Parliaments shall ensure compliance with that principle in accordance with the procedure set out in that Protocol.

(4) Under the principle of proportionality, the content and form of Union action shall not exceed what is necessary to achieve the objectives of the Fundamental Treaty.

The institutions of the Union shall apply the principle of proportionality as laid down in the Protocol on the application of the principles of subsidiarity and proportionality.

Article 12

Categories of competence

(1) When the Fundamental Treaty confers on the Union exclusive competence in a specific area, only the Union may legislate and adopt legally binding acts, the Member States being able to do so themselves only if so empowered by the Union or for the implementation of Union acts.

(2) When the Fundamental Treaty confers on the Union a competence shared with the Member States in a specific area, the Union and the Member States may legislate and adopt legally binding acts in that area. The Member States shall exercise their competence to the extent that the Union has not exercised, or has decided to cease exercising, its competence.

(3) The Member States shall coordinate their economic and employment policies within arrangements as determined by the Treaty on the Policies of the European Union, hereinafter referred to as Treaty on the Policies, which the Union shall have competence to provide.

(4) The Union shall have competence to define and implement a common foreign and security policy, including the progressive framing of a common defence policy.

(5) In certain areas and under the conditions laid down in the Fundamental Treaty, the Union shall have competence to carry out actions to support, coordinate or supplement the actions of the Member States, without thereby superseding their competence in these areas.

Legally binding acts of the Union adopted on the basis of the provisions in the Treaty on the Policies relating to these areas shall not entail harmonisation of Member States' laws or regulations.

(6) The scope of and arrangements for exercising the Union's competences shall be determined by the provisions relating to each area in the Treaty on the Policies.

Article 13

Areas of exclusive competence

(1) The Union shall have exclusive competence in the following areas:

- (a) customs union;
- (b) the establishing of the competition rules necessary for the functioning of the internal market;
- (c) monetary policy for the Member States whose currency is the Euro;
- (d) the conservation of marine biological resources under the common fisheries policy;
- (e) common commercial policy.

(2) The Union shall also have exclusive competence for the conclusion of an international agreement when its conclusion is provided for in a legislative act of the Union or is necessary to enable the Union to exercise its internal competence, or insofar as its conclusion may affect common rules or alter their scope.

Article 14

Areas of shared competence

- (1) The Union shall share competence with the Member States where the Fundamental Treaty confers on it a competence which does not relate to the areas referred to in Articles 13 and 17.

- (3) In the areas of research, technological development and space, the Union shall have competence to carry out activities, in particular to define and implement programmes; however, the exercise of that competence shall not result in Member States being prevented from exercising theirs.
- (4) In the areas of development cooperation and humanitarian aid, the Union shall have competence to carry out activities and conduct a common policy; however, the exercise of that competence shall not result in Member States being prevented from exercising theirs.

Article 15

The coordination of economic and employment policies

(1) The Member States shall coordinate their economic policies within the Union. To this end, the Council of Ministers shall adopt measures, in particular broad guidelines for these policies.

Specific provisions shall apply to those Member States whose currency is the Euro.

(2) Member States shall actively and unreservedly support the Union's common foreign and security policy in a spirit of loyalty and mutual solidarity and shall comply with the Union's action in this area. They shall refrain from action contrary to the Union's interests or likely to impair its effectiveness.

Article 18

Flexibility clause

(1) If action by the Union should prove necessary, within the framework of the policies defined in the Treaty on the Policies, to attain one of the objectives set out in the Fundamental Treaty, and the Fundamental Treaty has not provided the necessary powers, the Council of Ministers, acting unanimously on a proposal from the European Commission and after obtaining the consent of the European Parliament, shall adopt the appropriate measures.

(2) Using the procedure for monitoring the subsidiarity principle referred to in Article 11(3), the European Commission shall draw national Parliaments' attention to proposals based on this Article.

(3) Measures based on this Article shall not entail harmonisation of Member States' laws or regulations in cases where the Fundamental Treaty excludes such harmonisation.

It shall oversee the application of Union law under the control of the Court of Justice of the European Union. It shall execute the budget and manage programmes. It shall exercise coordinating, executive and management functions, as laid down in the Fundamental Treaty. With the exception of the common foreign and security policy, and other cases provided for in the Fundamental Treaty, it shall ensure the Union's external representation. It shall initiate the Union's annual and multiannual programming with a view to achieving interinstitutional agreements.

(2) Union legislative acts may be adopted only on the basis of a Commission proposal, except where the Fundamental Treaty provides otherwise. Other acts shall be adopted on the basis of a Commission proposal where the Fundamental Treaty so provides.

(3) The Commission's term of office shall be five years.

(4) The members of the Commission shall be chosen on the ground of their general competence and European commitment from persons whose independence is beyond doubt.

(5) The first Commission appointed under the provisions of the Fundamental Treaty shall consist of one national of each Member State, including its President and the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs who shall be one of its Vice-Presidents.

(6) As from the end of the term of office of the Commission referred to in paragraph 5, the Commission shall consist of a number of members, including its President and the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs, corresponding to two thirds of the number of Member States, unless the European Council, acting unanimously, decides to alter this number.

The members of the Commission shall be selected from among the nationals of the Member States on the basis of a system of equal rotation between the Member States. This system shall be established by a European decision adopted unanimously by the European Council and on the basis of the following principles:

(a) Member states shall be treated on a strictly equal footing as regards determination of the sequence of, and the time spent by, their nationals as members of the commission; consequently,

the difference between the total number of terms of office held by nationals of any given pair of Member States may never be more than one;

(b) subject to point (a), each successive Commission shall be so composed as to reflect satisfactorily the demographic and geographical range of all the Member States.

(7) In carrying out its responsibilities, the Commission shall be completely independent. Without prejudice to Article 28(2), the members of the Commission shall neither seek nor take instructions from any government or other institution, body, office or entity. They shall refrain from any action incompatible with their duties or the performance of their tasks.

(8) The Commission, as a body, shall be responsible to the European Parliament. In accordance with Article 227 of the Treaty on the Policies, the European Parliament may vote on a censure motion on the Commission. If such a motion is carried, the members of the Commission shall resign as a body and the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs shall resign from the duties that he or she carries out in the Commission.

Article 27

The President of the European Commission

(1) Taking into account the elections to the European Parliament and after having held the appropriate consultations, the European Council, acting by a qualified majority, shall propose to the European Parliament a candidate for President of the Commission. This candidate shall be elected by the European Parliament by a majority of its component members. If he or she does not obtain the required majority, the European Council, acting by a qualified majority, shall within one month propose a new candidate who shall be elected by the European Parliament following the same procedure.

(2) The Council, by common accord with the President-elect, shall adopt the list of the other persons whom it proposes for appointment as members of the Commission. They shall be selected, on the basis of the suggestions made by Member States, in accordance with the criteria set out in Article 26 (4) and (6), second subparagraph.

The President, the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs and the other members of the Commission shall be subject as a body to a vote of consent by the European Parliament. On the basis of this consent the Commission shall be appointed by the European Council, acting by a qualified majority.

(3) The President of the Commission shall:

(a) lay down guidelines within which the Commission is to work;

(b) decide on the internal organisation of the Commission, ensuring that it acts consistently, efficiently and as a collegiate body;

(c) appoint Vice-Presidents, other than the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs, from among the members of the Commission.

A member of the Commission shall resign if the President so requests. The Union Minister for Foreign Affairs shall resign, in accordance with the procedure set out in article 28(1), if the President so requests.

Article 28

The Union Minister for Foreign Affairs

- (1) The European Council, acting by a qualified majority, with the agreement of the President of the Commission, shall appoint the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs. The European Council may end his or her term of office by the same procedure.
- (2) The Union Minister for Foreign Affairs shall conduct the Union's common foreign and security policy. He or she shall contribute by his or her proposals to the development of that policy, which he or she shall carry out as mandated by the Council. The same shall apply to the common security and defence policy.
- (3) The Union Minister for Foreign Affairs shall preside over the Foreign Affairs Council.
- (4) The Union Minister for Foreign Affairs shall be one of the Vice-Presidents of the Commission. He or she shall ensure the consistency of the Union's external action. He or she shall be responsible within the Commission for responsibilities incumbent on it in external relations and for coordinating other aspects of the Union's external action. In exercising these responsibilities within the Commission, and only for these responsibilities, the Union Minister for Foreign Affairs shall be bound by Commission procedures to the extent that this is consistent with paragraphs 2 and 3.

Article 29

The Court of Justice of the European Union

The European Central Bank shall also be consulted in the case of institutional changes in the monetary area. The Convention shall examine the proposals for amendments and shall adopt by consensus a recommendation to a conference of representatives of the governments of the Member States as provided for in paragraph 3.

The European Council may decide by a simple majority, after obtaining the consent of the European Parliament, not to convene a Convention should this not be justified by the extent of the proposed amendments. In the latter case, the European Council shall define the terms of reference for a conference of representatives of the governments of the Member States.

(3) A conference of representatives of the governments of the Member States shall be convened by the President of the Council for the purpose of determining by common accord the amendments to be made to this Treaty.

The amendments shall enter into force after being ratified by all the Member States in accordance with their respective constitutional requirements.

A certified copy of such translations shall be provided by the Member States concerned to be deposited in the archives of the Council.

IN WITNESS WHEREOF, the undersigned plenipotentiaries have signed this Treaty.

Protocol I: The Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union

Explanatory note:

Some member states have reservations about integrating the full text of the Charter of Fundamental Rights with its own preamble into the text of the treaty. Therefore the Charter will not be incorporated in the Fundamental Treaty, but it will be added separately as a protocol. Thus the Fundamental Treaty remains short and concise while preserving the binding nature of the Charter enshrined in the Constitutional Treaty. In order to add the Charter as a protocol, some minor technical changes are needed to the text and a new numbering system needs to be introduced.

Treaty on the Policies of the European Union
(Treaty on the Policies)

A) Explanatory note

1. The basic reasoning behind the present proposal is that Part III of the Constitution should become a separate treaty as such. To achieve this the EC treaty is used as a starting point since it contains most of the provisions of Part III of the Constitutional Treaty as drafted in 2004. The new treaty will be called “Treaty on the Policies of the European Union”. Changes within the Treaty on the Policies compared to the EC Treaty are the following:
 - The title of the original EC Treaty has been changed, since its objective is no longer to establish a Community but rather to deal with items related to the political fields introduced by the new Fundamental Treaty and the functioning of the Union.
 - The terminology (institutions, acts, procedures) has been changed so as to adapt it to the Fundamental Treaty and for the sake of consistency between the latter and the Treaty on the Policies.
 - The provisions of the present EU Treaty concerning the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) and Police and Judicial Co-operation in Criminal Matters are integrated into the Treaty on the Policies. The wording of the Constitutional Treaty has been used.
 - The other provisions of the EC Treaty, its layout (order, numbering and subheadings) have been either changed or repealed according to the content of Part III of the Constitutional Treaty.
2. The present proposal makes it possible to preserve the essence of the Constitutional Treaty agreed in 2004 while pointing out that most of the provisions included in Part III of the Constitutional Treaty are already part of the Nice Treaty and have therefore already been ratified by the member states.
3. The Constitutional Treaty is a single treaty made up of four parts, and it completely repeals and replaces the existing treaties. Conversely, the present proposal foresees a split-up into a Fundamental Treaty and a Treaty on the Policies. The two are linked to one another and can only come into force jointly. Annexes can be added to these treaties, either in the form of protocols or as a statement about issues such as climate change and Social Europe.

4. The following changes to the EC Treaty are necessary:

- Editorial changes have been taken into account (e.g.: Articles 39, 44 and 84 of the EC Treaty and the corresponding articles III-133, III-137 and III-165).
- Sometimes, in order to change the EC Treaty into a “Treaty on the Policies of the European Union”, a renumbering of single paragraphs was required or whole articles needed to be changed into paragraphs in other articles and vice versa.
- Unlike in the Constitutional Treaty in Article IV-437, the existing treaties cannot simply be repealed. Therefore new articles are necessary to regulate the consequences of the introduction of the Fundamental Treaty and the Treaty on the Policies for the existing treaties, with the exception of the EC Treaty. It therefore follows that:
 - o The treaties amending the EC Treaty (such as Amsterdam) remain in force. The same goes for the changes to the Euratom Treaty, which is also maintained.
 - o On the other hand, those parts of the EU Treaty that reappear in the Fundamental Treaty are repealed (see Article 4 paragraph 1 of the proposed Treaty amending the EC Treaty): these are titles I, V, VI, VII and Articles 48 and 49 of the EU Treaty.
- As for the accession treaties, the method foreseen in Article IV-437 paragraph 2 of the Constitutional treaty will be used (see Art. 4 paragraph 2 of our proposal).
- Protocol 36 of the Constitutional Treaty entails all necessary changes to the Euratom Treaty. The content of this protocol is integrated in Article 3 of the proposed Treaty amending the EC Treaty.
- Annexes I and II of the EC Treaty will become part of the Treaty on the Policies. In order to take into account the new numbering, the wording of the titles will be adjusted. This change is a direct consequence of Art. 2 of the proposed Treaty amending the EC Treaty (Renumbering).
- The Fundamental Treaty and the Treaty on the Policies are drafted as a single legal document and have to be ratified and come into force as one.

Explanatory notes on the Annexes to the Treaty on the Policies of the European Union

A) Explanatory note to Protocol I: Climate change in Europe

Climate change will be the biggest challenge for the EU for the next decades. The Constitutional Treaty does not go deeply enough into this political question. Also in light of the decisions taken by the Heads of State and Government at the EU Summit in March 2007, this political deficit should be solved by means of a protocol on climate change.

In that protocol the EU must commit itself to defining a vision for a sustainable energy system on the basis of renewable energy and emission-free energy storage, such as hydrogen. Climate policy should be defined as an important task for the EU, and the protocol should set the overall policy objectives and the measures to be taken.

B) Explanatory note to Protocol II: A Social Europe

Many of the Constitution's opponents raised the criticism that the EU is too market-oriented, and that the Constitution would by no means contribute to the development of a social EU. In the protocol on a Social Europe the contradictions between the first and the third part of the Constitutional Treaty (respectively the Fundamental Treaty and the Treaty on the Policies) could be solved. For instance, the principle of full employment and the recognition of the importance of the social market economy could be anchored in both treaties thanks to the protocol. Such a protocol would make it possible to define new objectives for the Union's policies, such as:

- The introduction of social minimum standards, for instance a European-wide minimum wage
- A better coordination of the economic, monetary and social policies, especially in the Eurozone
- A reform of the Growth and Stability Pact, in order to guarantee the equal pursuit of both the objectives of stability and growth.
