Tuesday 2 November 2010

9:00-17:30

Enhancing the growth potential

As the world economy begins to emerge from its worst crisis in modern times, governments are looking for solutions how to expand their economies' growth potential. Repairing the damage wrought by the downturn and getting economies back onto the path of strong, sustainable and balanced growth will require concerted efforts in a number of policy domains. The following issues will be discussed in more detail at the seminar:

- * Making reform happen
- * Innovation
- * Education
- * Trade and employment

This seminar is open to representatives from the parliamentary/legislative branch of government.
