On 13 April 2011, the European Commission adopted the Single Market Act designed to revitalise the Single Market to the benefit of citizens. The Single Market Act contains twelve projects on which to relaunch the Single Market for 2012, so that the twentieth anniversary of the Single Market can be celebrated with renewed dynamism. The European Commission is working closely with the Parliament and stakeholders on these key projects.

The Joint Committee Meeting focuses on the future of Single Market policy and takes stock of the state of play in relaunching the Single Market in a number of key areas (Citizens' Mobility, Consumer Protection, Public Procurement and Digital Single Market). It also includes a key debate on the governance aspects of the Single Market. The main questions that will be discussed at the meeting are the following: How to make the Single Market fit for current and future challenges? How to make it easier for European citizens to work abroad? How to strengthen consumer confidence in the internal market? How to improve the implementation and enforcement of the Single Market rules? What will be the major steps in the modernisation of public procurement? What are the main challenges in developing the Digital Single Market?
