RESOLUTION ON

THE SELECTION PROCESS FOR THE APPOINTMENT OF

1. Having regard to the recent selection process for the nomination of the Secretary General of the OSCE, which has revealed serious deficiencies,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

2. Declares the need to improve transparency as well as democratic principles in the selection process for the appointment of the OSCE Secretary General, and therefore;
3. Urges the Permanent Council to consider the reform of the present procedure.

RESOLUTION ON BELARUS

1. Keeping in mind the resolutions adopted by the OSCE Parliamentary Assembly (OSCE PA) at its Annual Sessions in 1999 (St. Petersburg), 2000 (Bucharest), 2002 (Berlin) and 2003 (Rotterdam), the report and resolution of 2007 (Kyiv), and the Joint Declaration of the OSCE Working Group on Belarus and the delegation from the Belarusian National Assembly on future co-operation signed in 2004 (Edinburgh),
2. Noting with great disappointment that all efforts to hold a fruitful dialogue and to make progress in the fulfilment of the OSCE commitments which were reaffirmed at the Astana Summit in December 2010 and signed by President Lukashenko have failed,
3. Deploring that the presidential elections in December 2010 were again not free and fair,
4. Appalled by the brutal suppression of the protest demonstrations on 19 December 2010, in the course of which more than 600 people were detained, including several presidential candidates and their campaign managers,
5. Expressing its disappointment and lack of understanding of the fact that these people were charged with mass disturbances and were sentenced to up to six years' imprisonment in a strict security penal colony,
6. Appalled by the unjustified prison sentences which have already been imposed on some demonstrators,
7. Welcoming the fact that the OSCE/ODIHR has been granted permission to observe the trials,
8. Regretting that Belarus did not allow the independent expert appointed by the OSCE after the Moscow Mechanism was invoked to enter Belarus and take up and carry out his work,
9. Expressing deep regret that a fact-finding mission by the OSCE PA Working Group on Belarus has been rejected by Belarus,
10. Expressing deep regret that the Chair of the Working Group was refused a visa to observe the trials,
11. Expressing regret that Belarus has closed the OSCE Office in Minsk, and calling for this decision to be reconsidered in order to continue the promised co-operation with the OSCE,

12. Deeply dismayed that even small civil protests, for example against rises in petrol prices, are resulting in arrests,
13. Expressing deep concern about information on cases of torture and maltreatment of the imprisoned people,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

14. Calls for clarification of the facts surrounding statements by detainees who have fled abroad that the detainees in KGB prisons have been subjected to degrading treatment and torture, and demands an independent, international investigation of these accusations;
15. Calls on Belarus to carefully review and implement the extensive recommendations in the OSCE Moscow Mechanism Report;
16. Calls for the release of all persons detained in connection with the demonstration, who must be considered political prisoners;
17. Expects, where this does not happen, prisoners to receive unimpeded access to legal counsel, to be permitted visits from their families and friends, and to receive medical care;
18. Calls, in this context, in particular for Belarus to co-operate closely with the OSCE Representative on Freedom of the Media to resolve problems concerning the threatened closure of independent media outlets and to develop a media law reflecting the spirit of the OSCE principles;
19. Expects there to be no repeat of acts of repression against human rights activists, and instead expects all institutions of the Belarusian administration to comply strictly with the principles, to which Belarus is also a signatory, of the OSCE and of the human rights conventions;
20. Expects peaceful demonstrations and assemblies not to be banned in future;
21. Calls on the authorities to end the persecution, intimidation and repression of members of opposition political parties via the loss of jobs and university places;

RESOLUTION ON

WOMEN'S REPRESENTATION AT THE OSCE PARLIAMENTARY ASSEMBLY

1. Noting that article 1.4 of the OSCE PA Rules of Procedure states that: “Each national Delegation should have both genders represented”,
2. Noting with concern that in the OSCE PA National Delegations’ Members Directory circulated in Vienna on 21 February 21 2011, the following appears:
 - (a) Out of the 54 national delegations (there is no available data for Uzbekistan or Turkmenistan) in 17 delegations (31.48%) men are the only incumbents,
 - (b) 60.27% of the women are deputy members,
 - (c) There are only 10 women who are Head of a delegation (18.5%),
 - (d) Out of the 307 MPs only 73 (23.7%) are women,
 - (e) 26 women MPs (almost 50%) come from 10 delegations,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

3. Calls on the national parliaments to improve the representation of women in the OSCE PA national delegations in order to go forward in women’s empowerment.

RESOLUTION ON

COMBATING TRANSNATIONAL ORGANIZED CRIME

1. Mindful of the commemoration of the 10th anniversary of the United Nations Convention against Transnational Organized Crime at the Fall Meetings in Palermo in October 2010,
2. Noting that there are still some countries, even within the OSCE area, which have not yet ratified the Convention, nor the related protocols relating to trafficking in persons, smuggling of migrants and the illicit manufacturing and trafficking in firearms,
3. Considering that at its annual Fall Meetings in Palermo, the OSCE Assembly supported a crucial proposition made by Kofi Annan, the Secretary-General of the United Nations at the time the Palermo Convention was concluded, whereby the purpose to be pursued internationally is to harmonize domestic legislation in each country so as to guarantee greater effectiveness in combating organized crime,
4. Considering also that the "Palermo spirit" of ensuring the ever-increasing harmonization of legislation regarding combating organized crime, and strenuously defending democracy and human rights, at all times in compliance with the principles of the rule of law, must inspire the Parliaments' legislative work,
5. Noting the need for concrete co-operation between the OSCE and the Vienna-based United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime, which is committed internationally to weakening organized crime, and in particular the production and sale of drugs,
6. Mindful that administrative transparency guarantees that government departments and agencies function properly in preventing any attempt at corruption and discrimination,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

7. Urges the Parliaments of the participating States to strengthen their legislation to combat organized crime, consistently with the spirit and letter of the 2000 Palermo Convention, taking due account of the need to harmonise domestic legislation in order to more effectively defend the rule of law.

8. Acknowledging the need to strengthen the Inter-Agency Co-ordination Group against Trafficking in Persons under the co-ordination of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime in order to ensure overall co-ordination and coherence in the efforts of the United Nations system to respond to trafficking in persons, including through the implementation of the Global Plan of Action,

The Parliamentary Assembly of the OSCE:

9. Urges OSCE participating States and invites other relevant international, regional and subregional organizations, within their respective mandates, to contribute to the full and effective implementation of the Global Plan of Action to Combat Trafficking in Persons, principally by means of strengthening co-operation and improving co-ordination among themselves in achieving that goal;

7. Stressing that this involves, inter alia, understanding and addressing the factors conducive to terrorism as well as strengthening the resilience of individuals, communities and societies in order to reduce sympathy and support for those who incite and resort to terrorist violence,

4. Reiterating the importance of the implementation of the “Astana Commemorative Declaration – Towards a Security Community” adopted by the Heads of State and Government of the participating States of the OSCE on 2 December 2010, which calls for greater unity of purpose and actions to contend with new transnational threats, such as cyber threats which may come from inside or outside the OSCE region,

3. Recalling the OSCE commitments as expressed in the Ministerial Council Decision No. 5/09 to an improved collection of comparable data on migration, in order to facilitate dialogue and exchange of best practice at the OSCE level and to fostering co-operation and partnership between countries of origin and destination,
4. Recognizing that participating States still develop national migration schemes and policies without taking into consideration how their regulations will impact international migration flows,
5. Recognizing furthermore that the national migration scheme of one country can, often unintentionally, be undermined and negated by those of other countries due to a lack of knowledge of the wider migration context, unfamiliarity with the experiences that other countries have gained with certain migration policy instruments and the absence of commonly agreed upon definitions,
6. Realizing that this lack of co-ordination in the field of migration policy sometimes also exists within one country if too many agencies, each from their own perspective, are involved in formulating and implementing migration schemes,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

7. Calls on participating States to make more effective use of the wealth of expertise within the OSCE in the field of migration, both at the Office of the Co-ordinator of OSCE Economic and Environmental Activities and in the field missions;

4. Taking into consideration the research and statements of the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations concerning price growth and shortage of the basic food stuffs in the world market,
5. Taking into account that there are huge unused lands of agricultural importance in the developing countries, the cultivation of which might significantly increase the volumes of production of basic foodstuffs in these countries and thus ease the tension in the international market,
6. Also taking into consideration that cultivation of unused agricultural land will partially solve the issues of employment, malnutrition and hunger, which in their turn could also facilitate the settlement of the problem of uncontrolled migration flows,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

7. Stresses that food security problems have become one of the most important challenges of the 21st century, including in the OSCE area;
8. Calls on the parliaments and governments to implement necessary legal and institutional reforms to increase the use of arable agricultural lands for production of basic foodstuffs;
9. Calls on the parliaments and governments to take measures to solve social, communication and infrastructure problems to strengthen rural areas as a primary chain in securing food production and supply;

3. Recalling the proceedings of the 11th High Level Alliance against Trafficking Conference on “Preventing Trafficking in Human Beings for Labour Exploitation: Decent Work and Social Justice”,
4. Concerned that 12.3 million people are enslaved in forced labour, bonded labour, and forced prostitution worldwide, and that for every trafficking victim subjected to forced prostitution, nine people are forced to work,
5. Alarmed that women and children in forced and bonded labour are often sexually exploited as well,
6. Appalled that forced labour is prevalent in the cotton, chocolate, steel, rubber, tin, tungsten, coltan, sugar, and seafood industries — potentially tainting everyday products bought by unsuspecting consumers,
7. Concerned that billions of dollars in products tainted by forced labour in manufacturing and raw materials procurement are imported and exported worldwide every year, according to the International Labour Organization, and
8. Encouraged that corporations are beginning to examine their supply chains and insist on best practices to ensure that their suppliers are not utilizing trafficking victims,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

9. Urges participating States to prosecute labour trafficking occurring within their borders;
10. Urges participating States to provide protection for labour trafficking victims rescued within their borders;
11. Urges participating States to ensure that all goods procured by the government are free from raw materials and finished products produced by labour trafficking;

12. Urges participating States to encourage transparent corporate policy regarding labour trafficking, to facilitate the sharing of best practice among corporations, and to insist that corporations use independent verification that their supply chains are free of human trafficking.
13. Encourages parliamentarians to work with the OSCE Special Representative and Co-ordinator for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings to foster political will for an OSCE Ministerial Decision or Ministerial Declaration on combating trafficking for labour exploitation, including domestic servitude.

RESOLUTION ON

FREE MOVEMENT OF INFORMATION AND KNOWLEDGE

1. Considering the need for free exchange of knowledge and information to foster international peace and stability,
2. Noting the principle stressing freedom of thought enshrined in the Helsinki Final Act and other OSCE documents,
3. Emphasizing the fundamental importance of freedom of expression – including the principles of diversity and pluralism, both inherently and as an essential tool for the defence of all other rights and as a core element of democracy,
4. Aware of the enormous potential of the Internet as a tool for realizing the right to freedom of expression and to information, and of the effort of some governments to restrict access to the Internet,
5. Cognizant of the limits posed by high usage costs of traditional telecommunication media and of the fact that capital concentration of media and telecommunication ownership can restrict the free movement of thought, knowledge and ideas, emphasized by the unreadiness of many governments to adopt and implement laws guaranteeing the right to plurality of information sources and the need for anti-trust measures regarding media and telecommunication capital ownership,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

6. Strongly supports the need for the establishment of free movement of information and knowledge in and between OSCE countries;
7. Stresses the need for free access to information, especially through an Internet network easily accessible to all population groups;
8. Encourages public agencies to make as much information as possible available proactively, to stress free access to it and to facilitate the sharing and interchange of information;
9. Recognizes that new technologies strengthen democracy by ensuring easy access to information and allowing the public actively to obtain and impart information;
10. Welcomes the policy of lowering telecommunication prices between countries of the OSCE and invites all OSCE countries to shape a common strategy in this field;
11. Supports media independence and calls on OSCE countries to act more decisively on guaranteeing fertile ground for the development of critical, free and pluralized media;

12. Calls upon governments to ensure and promote easy access to new technologies by easing the liberalisation of media and telecommunication markets;
13. Invites the OSCE to enable the Representative on Freedom of the Media and the ODIHR to be more active in the field of promoting free movement of information and knowledge and its free access, as this is one of the pillars for guaranteeing effective participatory democracy and the strengthening of human rights. The activities of the Representative should ensure maximum impartiality and avoid double standards to the detriment of specific countries.

RESOLUTION ON

GENDER, MIGRATION AND ECONOMIC INDEPENDENCE

1. Recognizing that equal opportunities for women and men and the full and equal enjoyment of their human rights by women are essential to peace, sustainable democracy, economic development and prosperity and, therefore, to security and stability in the OSCE region,
2. Recognizing that at the UN Beijing Conference in 1995 women's rights were recognized as de facto human rights,
3. Noting that in some OSCE participating States women still do not participate fully in the economic, social, cultural and political lives of their countries,
4. Acknowledging that in many OSCE participating States, women are still the poorest and most vulnerable members of society,
5. Being aware that poverty is a key indicator of political and social instability, and that it affects men and women differently,
6. Noting that the full potential of women's economic activities and their contribution to the economic prosperity of their families and countries is unrealized and underutilized across the OSCE region,
7. Acknowledging that women share responsibility for income generation and economic stability and that their income has a multiplier effect given that it is more likely to be invested in their families and communities,
8. Concerned that women's economic dependence on men, especially in times of economic difficulty and crises, increases their vulnerability and susceptibility to violence, abuse, oppression, isolation, exploitation and discrimination, domestically or socially, and potential as victims of deliberately submissive foreign bride arrangements and illegitimate economic activities such as prostitution and human trafficking,
9. Acknowledging that gainful economic opportunities, economic empowerment, migration education and training are legitimate avenues and solutions by which women and girls can reduce their impoverishment, achieve economic independence, improve their living conditions and realize their full economic potential,
10. Noting the variation in the prominence and success of women entrepreneurs across countries of the OSCE region and that women entrepreneurs are more likely to face challenges relating to discrimination regarding access to and control over such economic and financial resources as loans, credit, financing, property and inheritance rights, as well as barriers pertaining to social norms and traditional values, the undervaluing of women's potential and abilities, inadequate business skills and education and inadequate access to markets,

11. Acknowledging that the experiences and disadvantages of female migrants, labourers and entrepreneurs are different from those of men, due to their status, the nature of the employment sectors in which they are typically represented, their educational requirements, the limited legal channels for female migrant workers, and exclusion from the protection of sound labour legislation,
12. Noting that gender-based analysis has shown that female workers and migrants are more likely to be underrepresented in senior positions of responsibility and management, be paid lower wages, work longer hours, have less job security and face increased sexual harassment, abuse and discrimination than male counterparts,
13. Recognizing the various types of female migrants, such as permanent and temporary, labour and family class, low skill and high skill, refugees and asylum seekers, documented and undocumented, young and old, each presenting its own opportunities and challenges requiring equally diverse policy responses,
14. Concerned that the disproportionate number of migrant women employed in economic labour sectors, such as domestic and care services, garment manufacturing, hospitality, and agriculture, remain unregulated in some countries,
15. Affirming the economic and social benefits resulting from legal and orderly migration by women, including labour migration, and of actively promoting possibilities for women in the labour market and as business entrepreneurs, both for their own benefit and for the benefit of their families and their country's economic potential,
16. Noting that wider access to affordable and reliable justice on the part of vulnerable groups such as female migrants and women economically dependent on their spouses is an important avenue for ensuring their rights are respected, particularly under circumstances of marital dissolution, custody of children, employment discrimination and harassment, and equity of pay for equal work,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

17. Reiterates and commends past OSCE Parliamentary Assembly resolutions on gender, migration and economic opportunities, the 2004 OSCE Action Plan for the Promotion of Gender Equality, and the work of the Office of the Co-ordinator of OSCE Economic and Environmental Activities, the OSCE Special Representative and Co-ordinator for Combating Trafficking in Human Beings, the OSCE Gender Section and OSCE field missions in promoting gender mainstreaming and regarding support for projects and seminars addressing gender equality, migration, labour, economic opportunities and skills, and data collection, entrepreneurship and economic empowerment;

18. Stresses the need to raise awareness about the untapped potential of women in all economic sectors;
19. Affirms the rights of women to increased economic autonomy, including control over their earnings, legal migration opportunities, safe and secure recruitment procedures, access to judicial proceedings, fair remuneration and decent working conditions, including the right to negotiate better terms of employment;
20. Notes the principle that maternity/paternity policies and childcare programmes are key elements in promoting equal employment opportunities and responsibility-sharing between women and men and enhancing the economic prosperity of women and their families;
21. Encourages OSCE participating States to build liaisons and strong relations with non-governmental labour and business sectors to promote training opportunities, education, employment and pay equity for women in the labour market by way of various programmes, policies, legislative and financial/tax incentives; encourages mentoring relationships and co-operation at the national and regional levels among women's organizations relating to labour, migration and entrepreneurship, including trade unions, non-governmental organizations and business associations which focus on training and counselling, exchanging good practices regarding women's entrepreneurship, developing associations and networks of women entrepreneurs, identifying priorities for economic reforms and policies that support women's economic independence and prosperity, enhancing employment opportunities, and support and protection of female migrant workers and entrepreneurs;
22. Calls upon participating States to adopt legislation that creates an enabling environment to provide equality of economic and employment opportunity for men and women; ensures equal access for women and girls to education, training and equal wages; promotes gender balance in senior positions of responsibility and management; and improves working conditions and provides equal access to benefits including child care;
23. Calls upon participating States to adopt policies that facilitate economic opportunities and independence for women, including promoting the growth of female entrepreneurship, establishing non-burdensome licensing and taxation regimes, and developing gender-sensitive programmes that facilitate access to finance, education and training and the development of local, national and regional business associations;
24. Calls upon participating States to adopt programmes and strategies that implement women's rights regarding equality of economic and employment opportunity, education, training and wages;
25. Urges participating States to enhance their capacity for reliable collection, analysis and dissemination of sex-disaggregated data and research on migration, employment and economic independence according to standardized methodology, and to consider issuing grants or other means of supporting non-governmental organizations to collect, analyse and disseminate sex-disaggregated data and research;

26. Encourages participating States to exchange best practice concerning gender, migration and the economic independence of women in order to develop more effective policies in business support, education and labour regulation, and to identify priority areas for further capacity-building.

23. Strongly believes that the respect of the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) nuclear safety standards and the requirements of the 1991 Espoo Convention on Environmental Impact Assessment throughout each stage of the development of a nuclear programme, from planning, siting, building and operation to decommissioning and dismantling of nuclear facilities, and co-operation and exchange of best practice between the OSCE participating States in these fields will contribute to the enhancement of nuclear safety in the OSCE region;

3. Endeavouring to support custody determinations by courts located in the habitual residence of the child,

2. Having regard to the international legislation on human rights covering all forms of racial discrimination and the 1992 United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Persons Belonging to National or Ethnic, Religious and Linguistic Minorities,
3. Having regard to Article 19 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union, which empowers the Council to adopt adequate measures to counter discrimination on racial or ethnic grounds,
4. Having regard to the European Parliament resolution of 31 January 2008 on a European strategy on the Roma,
5. Having regard to the European Parliament resolution of 10 July 2008 on the census of the Roma,
6. Having regard to the European Parliament resolution of 11 March 2009 on the social situation of the Roma,
7. Having regard to the European Parliament resolution of 9 September 2010 on the situation of Roma and on freedom of movement in the European Union,
8. Having regard to the conclusions of the Employment, Social Policy, Health and Consumer Affairs Council on the inclusion of the Roma, adopted in Luxembourg on 8 June 2009,
9. Having regard to the Commission Working Document on inclusion of the Roma: “Roma in Europe: The Implementation of European Union Instruments and Policies for Roma Inclusion (Progress Report 2008-2010)”,
10. Having regard to the reports on the Roma, racism and xenophobia in the European Union Member States in 2009, published by the Fundamental Rights Agency of the European Union, and the reports of the Commissioner for Human Rights of the Council of Europe, Thomas Hammarberg,
11. Having regard to the recommendations, opinions and declarations of the Council of Europe on the Roma population (Strasbourg, 20 October 2010),
12. Having regard to the OSCE Action Plan for the Development of the Roma Population (December 2003),

13. Having regard to the first European Roma Summit, held in Brussels on 16 September 2008, and to the second Summit, held in Córdoba on 8 April 2010,
14. Having regard to the joint statement of the Trio (Spain, Belgium, Hungary) at the Summit held in Córdoba in April 2010, pledging a firm stance against stigmatization and a quest for improved co-ordination and collaboration with the Commission and the Parliament, together with participation in other political processes, such as the Decade of Roma Inclusion 2005-2015 and the OSCE Action Plan, in the framework of the recommendations of the Council of Europe and the United Nations,
 - (a) Considering that a high proportion of the 10 to 12 million Roma living in Europe have suffered systematic discrimination and face an intolerable degree of social, cultural and economic exclusion, besides experiencing violations of their human rights and suffering serious stigmatization and discrimination in public and private life,
 - (b) Considering that since the first Summit (Brussels, September 2008) there have been substantial changes:
 - i. An integration platform has been established for Roma inclusion for the purpose of exchanging good practices, promoting analytical support and stimulating cooperation: “Integrated Platform on Roma Inclusion”, established in 2009 by decision of the European Council,
 - ii. Within its framework 10 common basic principles were defined and emphasis was laid on the non-exclusive approach and on the mainstreaming approach,
 - iii. Article 7 of the Structural Funds Regulation has been modified to foster integral action for improved housing conditions and for the elimination of segregation, in both rural and urban areas,

 - i. Not only have the Roma not progressed on a par with the economic development of countries but in many cases their circumstances are worse and the effects of the economic crisis may exacerbate the situation even further,
 - ii. The Roma population continues to be the most rejected in the majority of European countries and the prejudices and stereotypes regarding it are on the increase,

- iii. In some cases attacks on the physical integrity of individuals and violations of their fundamental rights are continuing,
- iv. There is insufficient cooperation between the various institutions and international processes (European Union, Decade, OSCE, Council of Europe, etc.),
- v. Horizontal cooperation between countries, except in specific cases and such initiatives as EU-Roma, has not progressed,
- vi. The Roma are beginning to benefit under the Structural Funds but there is no evidence of any significant impact,
- vii. Spaces for Roma participation at European level have not been developed,

The OSCE Parliamentary Assembly:

- 15. Takes into account that the Roma should be an essential part of the participating States' key policies:
 - (a) The 2020 Strategy and its key measures;

Considering the decisive role played by witnesses in the work of the justice system for discovery of the truth and the struggle against impunity, by means of the help with which they can supply the police and the courts, particularly in matters bearing on war crimes and the struggle against organized crime, as well as the vital necessity resulting therefrom to protect them against the intimidation, threats and violence to which they might be subjected to dissuade them from testifying or to punish them for their testimony, often considered as betrayal or “treason”, and in order to provide them with help and assistance so that they can give evidence in the best possible conditions,
7. In the light of the specific difficulties encountered by witnesses known as “insiders”, in other words, coming from criminal groups or serving with the armed forces or the police,

14. Calls on the competent national authorities to apply special measures if circumstances so require, particularly by restricting the disclosure of information concerning witnesses, removal of the identifying information concerning a witness from public documents, use of pseudonyms, closed door testimony and partially or completely anonymous testimony, with due observance of the case law of the European Court for Human Rights, as well as – if need be – a change of identity and resettlement of a witness in another place, including abroad;
15. Calls on the competent national authorities to extend, if need be, possible measures for protection and assistance from which a witness might benefit to include some or all of those around them;
16.
