

Invitation and program

What is important at the global energy agenda 2013?

TIME	23 April 2013, 14:30 – 17:00
VENUE	CTR, Stæhr Johansens Vej 38, 2000 Frederiksberg, Denmark
REGISTRATION	Please register by sending an e-mail to natlab@dtu.dk, no later than 18 April 2013

Energy is again on the top of the political agenda in many countries. The post Fukushima nuclear future, the game changing shale gas, supply uncertainty and price volatility, the need for reducing the global CO₂ emissions and the related climate framework uncertainty, as well as the global recession are rocking the foundation of the roadmap into our energy future.

The global energy sector faces huge challenges over the coming decades in order to address these uncertainties and transform the energy system towards sustainable energy.

What worries the energy leaders and who is setting the agenda?

2013 World Energy Issues Monitor published by World Energy Council gives an idea of this. It will be presented by Einari Kisel, Senior Fellow, European Policies & Partnership Development, WEC.

His presentation will be followed up with views of the important issues on the Danish energy agenda, presented by The Danish Energy Industries Federation and the Danish Energy Agency.

Finally we will launch our own Danish issues mapping process in conjunction with this event. The participating members will be asked to complete the WEC survey during the course of the event to develop a national map for Denmark.

Program
14:30 - 14:40	Welcome and introduction to the WEC meeting	Hans Larsen, Vice Dean President, WEC Denmark
14:40 - 15:20	2013 World Energy Issues Monitor	Einari Kisel, Senior Fellow WEC
15:20 - 15:50	Danish industrial points of view on the energy agenda	Hans Peter Slente, Director Danish Energy Industries Federation
15:50 - 16:20	Danish Energy Agency's points of view on the energy agenda	Hans Jørgen Koch, International Director, Danish Energy Agency
16:20 - 17:00	Preparation of Danish Energy Issues Monitor, networking and refreshments

The meeting is free for all employees in companies and organizations that are members of WEC Denmark. The fee for other participants is DKK 1.000,- (DKK 0,- if you become a member of WEC Denmark. Membership fees from DKK 3.000,- per year).