

The Danish Innovation Foundation - Program Commission on Individuals, Disease and Society invites you to a conference on:

Diabetes and obesity – in a global life course perspective
Indo-Danish collaboration in health research

For more than 6 years Indian and Danish researchers have collaborated in joint projects in the field of human health research. Speakers at the conference will be both Indian and Danish researchers that have received a collaboration grant.

The conference seeks to bring to the fore some of the highly relevant research questions regarding diabetes and obesity that this collaboration has produced. These are questions that worry and concern governments, researchers and populations across the globe.

The conference will also look into some of the benefits and challenges brought on by collaboration across cultures.

Anyone with an interest in health research in general, metabolic research in particular as well as cross-cultural research is welcome.

The conference is free of charge – however there is a limit to the guest capacity, so registration is required.

Time: 4 September 2014 (10:00 – 17:00)

Place: Copenhagen, Eigtveds Pakhus, Asiatisk Plads 2 G

Admission: free of charge, but registration is required before 1 September – sign up

Please see the attached programme for details
