Fundamental Rights Conference

10-11 November 2014

This year, FRA's annual flagship Fundamental Rights Conference will focus on migration and the importance of a fundamental rights-based approach to EU policy in this field. The conference will be hosted by FRA in cooperation with the Italian Presidency of the Council of the EU and will take place on 10-11 November 2014 in Rome.

Over 250 migration experts from across the European Union will discuss how to ensure that migration and inclusion policies are based on a shared understanding of fundamental rights, thereby promoting solidarity, social cohesion and the development of inclusive societies free of racial discrimination. The wide-ranging debates will cover numerous issues, including the recent humanitarian emergencies at the EU's external borders and the resulting need for a more comprehensive and coordinated European response to migration that is based on a fundamental-rights oriented system, helping to prevent unnecessary deaths and curb trafficking. The opportunity to exchange information and share good practices at the operational level will also form an important part of the conference.

The conference will start with a high-level opening hosted at the Italian Chamber of Deputies. The following day, the conference will continue at the Interior Ministry School of Administration.

More information on the programme will follow after the summer period.
