 Denmark's engagement with
 International HIV/AIDS Alliance (IHAA)
 2014-2017

The work of the Alliance

International HIV/AIDS Alliance (IHAA) is a global partnership of nationally-based, independent civil society organisations which aims to secure the human rights of all people affected by HIV/AIDS in low- and middle income countries, with a particular emphasis on vulnerable and marginalised population groups. IHAA is particularly concerned with the access to health services of groups exposed to stigmatisation and discrimination, such as commercial sex workers, men having sex with men etc. It has a strong track record in the area of ensuring equal and non-discriminatory access to services and information.

International HIV/AIDS Alliance
Established	1993
HQ	Brighton, United Kingdom
Field offices	One country office, 6 regional technical support hubs
Human resources	114
CEO	Alvaro Bermejo
Financial resources	37.3 mill. USD (2013)
Denmark's contribution	10 mill. DKK annually (core contribution)

Denmark supports IHAA because

- IHAA focuses on the human rights of key populations which are often marginalised.
- IHAA works towards integrating services for HIV and sexual and reproductive health and rights

Key challenges for IHAA

- Increased hostility towards human rights of key populations constitutes an impediment to a human rights based approach to delivery of HIV services.
- Decreasing levels of funds available.

Denmark will expect IHAA to

- Address the rights of key populations and other marginalised groups to access information and services on equal terms with everyone else.
- Promote integrated services, comprehensive sexuality education and youth friendly services.

Denmark will follow-up by

- Monitoring Danish priority areas based on IHAA's own framework
- Participating in annual donor meetings.
