As the representatives of the people, parliaments have the responsibility to ensure that the exercise of power by the executive benefits all the community. Parliament can actively engage in the development and implementation of laws, policies, and practices that promote democracy and good governance. An open, inclusive and transparent government and parliament will strengthen trust in democracy and ensures the integrity of public institutions. The need to implement good governance is crucial as we seek to implement the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) including SDG 16 (peace, justice, and strong institutions). SDG 16 has outlined key targets we must reach to achieve better public institutions that promote democracy and good governance.

The session will elaborate on pathways towards openness and how transparency can support parliaments to deter corruption. The session explores concrete examples in the promotion of good governance and the implementation of SDG 16.

15.00 – 15.15	Coffee Break
15.15 – 17.15	PLENARY SESSION 2 (Venue: Al Majlis Auditorium) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Our Own Integrity: Taking Ownership, Welcoming Accountability</li> </ul> Despite strong turnouts by voters in many national elections, many surveys on public trust often place parliamentarians among those who are least trustworthy. It is no longer enough for parliamentarians to subscribe to high standards, they must be able to demonstrate how they are open and accountable for their actions and decisions. Many parliaments have realised they need to re-evaluate their own Code of Conduct and Standing Orders to make sure the expectations of a modern, open society are being met by their parliament. Citizens today realise that democracy is more than just one election every few years – citizens want to be listened to and be part of the decision-making process. Parliaments need to therefore reassess that their ways of operating in 2019 are fit for purpose.. Integrity is at the heart of the anti-corruption agenda and today’s parliamentarians need to take ownership of their own integrity and demonstrate how they can be held to account. From citizen budgets to Standing Committees taking evidence in remote communities, modern parliaments are using technology and listening to their communities so as all citizens can be confident that the deliberation process and law-making are being conducted with the utmost integrity.
